2009 ESP National Conference: Engage, Enlighten and Enjoy

Engage: The Engaged University

Joseph Chapman
Chapman became North Dakota State University's 13th president in June 1999. Chapman's tenure at NDSU has been distinguished by a record of unprecedented successes in research, student life, curriculum, faculty pay and Division I athletics. He has demonstrated a strong commitment to the university's land-grant mission and the important work of University Extension. Under Chapman’s leadership, research expenditures have doubled, to exceed $100 million and private sector partnerships have developed, including the NDSU Research and Technology Park.

Enlighten: From Great to Enlightened

Sharon Anderson

Much has been shared about good leaders becoming great. But great leaders must adapt to the ever changing work place, meet the important needs of others and look to the future with creativity and passion. The future of our organizations is guided by enlightened leaders who continue to grow, learn and challenge the past and the future. Let's move on from great to enlightened!

Anderson serves as Special Consultant to the President and CEO of National 4-H Council. Prior to that assignment, she spent her career with the NDSU Extension Service serving as a human development specialist, 4-H youth development specialist, district director and finally as Extension director for North Dakota. Anderson was a member of ECOP, the National 4-H Board of Trustees and the 21st Century Extension Service project. Her passion during all of her career was leadership development throughout the organization.

Enjoy: Extension in America: Drawn to Service, Steve Stark

We'll experience the grand history of the Extension Service not only told-but drawn before our eyes by illustrator, presenter (and former NDSU Extension specialist) Steve Stark. Stark is an illustrator, presenter and teacher who has delighted audiences with his presentations on a variety of subjects across the country.

4-H Drummers and Dancers from the Standing Rock reservation will perform several traditional dances and drum sequences. The youth are enrolled in Sioux County 4-H and are part of the 21st Century After-school program.
I hope that spring has come to your part of the country! Although the calendar tells me spring has arrived in Illinois, Mother Nature is not telling me the same thing! Hopefully the two will agree soon.

But there is one thing that the calendar is telling me that I know is true—the National ESP Conference in Fargo, ND, September 13 – 16, is drawing closer each day. Engage, Enlighten, and Enjoy—what a powerful theme for our upcoming conference! We know that many of our members have been experiencing challenges—economically, professionally, and perhaps physically. The National ESP Conference is an opportunity for ESP professionals to come together, and participate in outstanding professional opportunities while meeting and learning from our colleagues from throughout the country. You can be certain you will be professionally engaged and enlightened while enjoying your time in Fargo. I hope to see you all in Fargo.

Robert (Bob) Ohlensehlen was selected as the new Executive Director of Epsilon Sigma Phi. Bob will succeed Linda Cook, who is retiring this fall after 9 years as ESP Executive Director. We will truly miss Linda but wish her well as she prepares to retire from the position of ESP Executive Director. We also look forward to working with Bob.

Bob is no stranger to ESP as he has served as National ESP President, Vice President for the Western Region, and chaired the ESP Professional Development, ESP Public Issues and ESP Membership Recruitment and Retention Committees. He has also served as ESP President, President-Elect, Past President and Secretary of the Theta Chapter in Idaho. Please join me in welcoming Bob to his new role with Epsilon Sigma Phi. Bob can be reached at bobnms@cableone.net

Recently I returned from the 2009 Public Issues Leadership (PILD) Conference held in the Washington, D.C. area. The PILD Conference is sponsored by the Joint Council of Extension Professionals, (JCEP) and attracted over 240 Extension professionals and volunteers. Attendees had the opportunity to hear from the leadership of the National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA) the new federal “home” of Cooperative Extension. We also held roundtable discussions with Extension National Program Leaders, had the opportunity to attend workshops where we learned about successful programs that better market Extension to local decision makers, and visit with federal legislators and decision makers to inform them of the importance of Cooperative Extension to the people of this country.

ESP members had the opportunity to visit the office of APLU—Association of Public and Land Grant Universities. This is the new name for what we have known as NASULGC. We toured the offices of APLU and had a very informative presentation about the Land Grant System by Dr. Ian Maw, Vice President, Food, Agriculture and Natural Resources, APLU. Beth Claypoole, New York, Chair of the National ESP Public Issues Committee, made arrangements for ESP members to tour the APLU Offices. Both Beth and Laura Wilson, Kentucky, a member of the National ESP Public Issues Committee, served on the 2009 PILD Planning Committee.

While at the PILD Conference I attended a workshop conducted by Dr. Lannie Hass, North Carolina State University. Dr. Hass spoke on Risk Communications and the importance of understanding the process of communicating in high stress situations. I will not attempt to paraphrase the excellent information Dr. Hass shared with the participants in the workshop other than to state that he reminded us that during highly stressful times people do not care how much you know until they know how much you care. Or stated another way—“When people are stressed and upset, they want to know that you care before they care what you know.”

In these challenging and highly stressful times this is a very important message to remember as we work with colleagues, clientele, friends, and families members.

Top 10 Reasons to Attend 2009 National ESP Conference

10. Professional Development Opportunities that cross-cut Extension Programs.
9. Connections with other states—SHARING at a time when we all need to share.
8. Excellent tours of the Fargo-Moorhead area.

6. Hotel shuttle to shopping/in town locations/on demand.
5. Conference fee includes MOST meals.
4. Hotel rooms at $89/night for a double.
3. Learn more about ESP by attending a National ESP Committee meeting.
2. Secure program ideas to take home and put to use.
1. Strengthen your professionalism by becoming engaged, enlightened when you enjoy this outstanding professional conference.
ESP Participates in PILD

Public Issues Leadership Development Conference
Beth Claypoole, Public Issues Chairperson

It is a pleasure to serve on this committee at the national level and I want to thank the National ESP Board for putting a high priority on our continued participation.

I serve on the committee as ESP’s chair of the Public Issues Committee and another member is recommended to also serve. This past year, that member was Laura Wilson from Kentucky. We both had an excellent time planning and participating in this great conference.

A highlight of the conference was learning about all the new and evolving structure of NIFA (formerly CREEES), National Institute of Food and Agriculture. We had time to visit with National Program Leaders and hear from our national representatives in the USDA. In addition, as part of our ESP association meeting, we were able to visit the “new” APLU offices (Association of Public and Land Grant Universities – formerly NASLGUC). Ian L. Maw, Vice President for Food, Agriculture, and Natural Resources, was our host and explained the history of the Land Grant System. ESP participants then had a great German dinner at Café Mozart and were able to share time with colleagues from across the nation.

All presentations and workshops from PILD will be available on the JCEP webpage very soon. Visit that site at: www.jcep.org Pay particular attention to our capnote speaker Douglas Steele, Vice Provost and Director, Montana State University Extension, who provided the results of an ECOP survey on marketing and communications for extension. Results and ideas from the research will be posted on the JCEP website. (How many of you have heard “Extension is the best kept secret”???) In addition, the final report from the survey was presented and videotaped at the National Extension Directors meeting in New Orleans in February and is posted at www.aplu.org.

In addition to participation in PILD, Public Issues Committee members are hard at work! Thanks to member Jo Anne Kock, who put together a panel of extension administrators from across the county, and will be moderating a panel at our National ESP meeting in Fargo on how states are dealing with fiscal changes. Lots of opportunities for questions and discussion, hope to see everyone in Fargo!

If anyone needs help or ideas for your state chapter Public Issues Committee, please let me know how I can help. Just give me a call, 315-331-8415.

More Ideas for Successful Member Recruitment & Retention
Duane P. Johnson, Chair, Member Recruitment & Retention

In the last issue of ESP Connection we started a list of ideas that have proved to be successful by chapter leadership to expand membership in ESP. In 2010 it appears it will take creative ideas, demonstrated enthusiasm, and dedication for all Extension organizations to keep the positive attitude and bright outlook for Extension and the Extension professional. The downturn of the economy has and will continue to provide new opportunities for the Extension System and all the professionals to keep our very needed and outstanding profession – In my opinion there is no profession that is more satisfying and rewarding than that of Extension. A major key to keeping the extension professional and Extension organization viable is active participation by each professional in their personal development, professional development, leadership development and sharing of outstanding programs and ideas through recognition. All of these are possible through Epsilon Sigma Phi. Following are some ideas that have been shared with us:

Plan Ahead for 2010
Recognizing that most Extension professionals belong to more than one professional organization we need to establish new strategies of paying dues. Some ESP chapters have found success in starting their recruitment early (July) so professionals can pay dues to the organizations they belong over several months – i.e. ESP dues in July, NEAFCS dues in September, and NACAA dues in October.

Some chapters are sending letters of invitation to possible new ESP members in August and following up with a personal contact two to three weeks later. The best follow-up is in person by a person who the invited member has worked with or who works in the same discipline or office.

Some chapters have allowed members to pay dues over two or three months. This, however, will put some bookkeeping responsibilities on the chapter Membership Recruitment & Retention Chair and Treasurer. The key will be to collect the dues by the time they must be submitted to the National ESP Office.

Promote ESP to all Extension Professionals
ESP is the “Extension Professionals Organization”. Membership is open to all Extension Professionals – county faculty and staff, university based faculty and staff, administration at the county and state level, program assistants and others with roles in Extension Programming.

ESP promotes professional development, leadership development and personal development among all professionals. Thus the professional development opportunities are diverse designed to meet the needs and interests of the above audiences.

A New Curriculum Teaches Global Awareness
Jan Scholl and Patreese Ingram, Penn State University

Exploring Clothes from Cultures Around the World is a new 4-H curriculum developed by Patreese Ingram and Jan Scholl, Associate Professors at Penn State University. The graphic designer was project Sookyoung Lee, from Korea. International groups on campus were contacted and many students—and Extension staff—were featured in the publication. The curriculum teaches diversity awareness through clothing—a topic of high interest to teens. In 2003, another curriculum, Breads Around the World was published using foods as the focus.

More than five years went into the research and development of this clothing project. In 2008, the 44 page, four-color publication went to press. The objectives of this project were to help young people and adults: understand culture through clothing and clothing customs and to appreciate clothing design and customs from different cultures and countries.

In order to accomplish the objectives, six types of dress from hundreds of world cultures were selected. Activities were designed to interest teens and general adult audiences. In addition, several step-by-step sequences show how to wrap a sari and headwear for both men are women. A record book for young people in the 4-H program is also provided. There are more than 178 color photographs and illustrations in this project manual. Photographs depict people in typical dress (not costumes) and the most prevalent textile designs and accessories. Only 10 of the photographs were purchased outside the local community.

A thousand teens (13-18 years of age) in the Pennsylvania 4-H program were the target audience, but interest was expressed by adult and community groups, family and consumer science teachers and outreach coordinators. Several seminars for Extension educators were taught by the authors and guest presenters from various countries. The project was also introduced at conferences in Beijing China and Antalya, Turkey. At the international conferences, clothing was also acquired to build a suitcase for young people to study and to try on the actual garments.

A review of the project showed that, even for the cultures that were not included in the publication, enough information was provided that young people could use the project to study, for example, clothing worn in other countries. The publication also served as a way of closing the generation gap among young people and their grandparents. The youth said that they were more likely to go up to a person wearing something different and ask them about it (rather than ignoring them). Many noted that they learned about the practical aspects of clothing designed for a certain climate. They also learned aspects of clothing that can identify social and marital status. It was also discovered that there are fashion trends, even in countries that still adhere to the most traditional garments. Young people adapt new accessories, and discover new ways of wrapping and wearing garments. Ideas from other countries and cultures find their way into American culture, too.

To obtain a copy or copies of the Exploring Clothes from Around the World or the Breads Around the World, contact the publications distribution center at Penn State University, at AGPubsDist@psu.edu or by calling 814-865-6713 for cost information. For questions on the content of the project, contact Patreese Ingram at pdi1@psu.edu or 4-H curriculum Specialist, Jan Scholl @jscholl@psu.edu.

Partnering, Pairing Up; Team Members
David S. Ross, MD, Member, National Member Recruitment & Retention Committee

We all find ourselves overloaded in our Extension work, as well as in our personal lives. How can we keep track of all we have to do and how can we get it all done. This is a common problem. For some tasks, two people working together can help each other to accomplish more. How? By sharing responsibility for a task, two can work together, sharing ideas and time to get the task done. One forgets but the other remembers. One is available today and the other is available tomorrow. Each has talents that can compliment the other. Meanwhile there are times when both can get together to work. All in all, two heads are better than one and more of the task is remembered and completed. Team tasks are remembered by both people. Each reminds the other.

For example, within a national committee like the Member Recruitment and Retention Committee (MR&R), there are tasks that need to be done each year about the same time. If a committee member teams with one or more of the National Regional Vice Presidents, then announcements, such as a reminder to complete and submit applications for Achievement in Chapter Membership Awards, may be remembered and distributed. Members of the MR&R Committee need to work with the regional vice presidents annually to get the announcements out to state chapters. Two members of a committee, chapter or research team can form similar relationships to tackle tasks.

Give it a try!

Life Membership for Retirees
Duane P. Johnson, Member Recruitment & Retention Committee Chair

Extension Professionals retiring before October 1 should consider becoming life members of ESP. If you are a 2009 annual member you may become a life member with an additional payment of $160.00. However, it must be paid by August 1.

If you know of Extension Professionals who are not current ESP members they may join as a Life ESP Member. Extension professionals may become a life member by paying a one-time $200.00 membership fee (chapters may have addition fees).

Non-Renewed Members Encouraged to Renew by August 1st

We would like you back! It is not too late to activate your 2009 membership if you overlooked the earlier notice, thought you had paid or were not in a position to pay your dues when the membership drive was held last fall or winter. Paying their 2009 dues by August 2009 will allow you to be considered for all the benefits of ESP membership. It also will allow you, upon paying 2010 dues, the opportunity to be considered for scholarships, conference presentations and National ESP Recognition Programs.

If you do not know your status contact your chapter secretary or membership chair.

National ESP History Being Written

The National Board of Epsilon Sigma Phi has formed a History Committee to write the history of Epsilon Sigma Phi, which would involve the history of Extension. This history would cover the years of 1980 to the present. The history of Extension and Epsilon Sigma Phi from its inception to 1979 has been captured in the book, The People and The Profession. Committee members Judy Carlson (Iowa), Susan Hansen (Nebraska) and Gary Moran (North Dakota) will be gathering information and resources to write this history. The goal is to have it published and available at the 2010 National ESP Conference in Jackson Hole, Wyoming.

The Committee will be attending the 2009 National ESP Conference to do interviews. They are interested in talking with Past National ESP Presidents and Board Members, Ruby recipients, recognition recipients, life members, and chapter officers and others for their memories and significant happenings.

The History Committee will have a table near registration for individuals to stop by and visit with the committee about the project. They are interested in signing-up individuals for additional interviews on Monday and Tuesday of the conference. In addition, a room will be available all during the conference for interested individuals to gather and record their stories.

If you have information to share or pictures and other documents that might be included in the book, please plan to meet the History Committee at the 2009 National ESP Conference. If you cannot attend the conference, please send your information to: Judy Carlson, Chair, at carljudy carlson@gmail.com

Weathering Economic Challenges...Emerging Leadership Workshop Planned, June 15 at 3:00 PM EDT

On June 15, you have the opportunity to invite the immediate past three Ruby Award winners into your office to learn about how their institutions have weathered past economic challenges and receive their advice/tips as we currently experience this challenge. How can we maintain and enhance personal and professional well-being as well as providing support for the communities, colleges and institution we represent? Presenters will be:

- 2009 Ruby Recipient – Dr. W. Gaines Smith, Extension Director, Auburn University
- 2008 Ruby Recipient – Dr. Dave Petritz, Professor Emeritus – Special Assistant to the Dean, Purdue University
- 2007 Ruby Recipient – Dr. Bonnie McGee, Professor & Associate Director for 4-H, Youth Development & Human Sciences, Texas A & M University

Take advantage of this opportunity to learn from the insight gained from the extension careers of these distinguished individuals. ESP members are being encouraged to use this event as a recruitment activity for potential ESP members in your state. Register for yourself and a colleague who has not yet joined ESP by using the registration form below or contacting Linda Cook at espoffice@espnational.org.

The program will be hosted using the Pennsylvania State University’s Adobe Connect system. You'll be able to participate and interact from your computer desktop or project it for group viewing. A “Friends of Penn State” access code and password are required to log-in to the program. If you do not have one, go to http://fps.psu.edu create an account. These accounts are free.

Members of the 2009 ESP Emerging Leadership sub-committee of the Professional Development Committee are Debbie Bost - North Carolina State University; Jan Carroll – Colorado State University; Susan Guinnip – University of Illinois and chair, Karen Vines – Penn State University.

ESP Development Fund Needs Your Support!

The ESP Endowment Campaign is helping to endow sufficient resources to sustain current scholarships, professional development opportunities, and recognition programs for Extension professionals and offers the possibility of new initiatives. Significant progress has been made on the $500,000 Development Fund Campaign launched in 2002. With over 675 contributors, ESP is well on its way to reaching the goal.

Gifts may be made in cash, securities or property during one’s lifetime. To make a cash gift, please use the form below. Deferred gifts may be made by specifying Epsilon Sigma Phi Development Fund as beneficiaries of your estate through trust gifts, bequests and life insurance. The ESP Development Fund has met the requirements of the Internal Revenue Code that allow gifts to be deductable for income tax and estate tax purposes.

To include the ESP Development Fund in your will, remember to consult an attorney and family members that may be affected. Additionally, be specific in the bequest statement as to the entity receiving the bequest. For additional information, Contact the National ESP Office, Linda D. Cook, Executive Director, PO Box 357340, Gainesville, FL 32635-7340, Telephone: 352-378-6665, FAX 352-375-0722, espoffice@espnational.org

Please consider making a cash contribution of any amount. If you have given before, please consider making another contribution. All campaign donors will be recognized in the listing of Epsilon Sigma Phi Contributors. Special recognition is provided for donors with an accumulated gift at the Bronze Key and higher levels.
